This beautiful Eco-Lodge is located on a privately owned, remote beach inside Alaska's Kachemak Bay State Park, midway between the villages of Seldovia and Halibut Cove, and only 10 miles by boat from Homer, Alaska, the "Bear Viewing Capital of the World." (and also the gateway town for the Kenai Fjords National Park, Lake Clark National Park, and Katmai National Park.) Custom built in the mid 1970's from driftwood that was milled by hand, piece by piece, into lumber by owner/operator Keith Iverson and accessible only by boat, float plane, or helicopter, Sadie Cove Wilderness Lodge offers the visitor a unique opportunity to participate in Alaska's wilderness lifestyle with a couple of true Alaskan sourdoughs. It has been said by many guests of the lodge that few places on earth can match the natural, untouched wilderness setting and natural ecology of Sadie Cove.	Advance reservations required. Valid in the months of May, June and September 2008. This award is also valid in the months of July and August if the reservation is made within one week of arrive. Guests must pay their own roundtrip water taxi transportation across Kachemak Bay to Sadie Cove. Sadie Cove will book w/ Red Mt Marine for R/T to Sadie Cove at a cost of $95.00 per person.
